Col. Carter W. Clarke, Chief,
Army Security Agency,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Col. Clarke:

I should be delighted to see you here in New York and if by any chance you are free to lunch with me on the 11th, we could join business and pleasure.

I can assure you of the warmest welcome from your friends here in the office and I should like to get for the lunch as many of them as happen to be available.

If luncheon on the 11th is not a good time, just let me know when during your stay here would be most convenient for you.

Faithfully yours,

A. W. Dulles
